Inspirando Nuestra Juventud (Inspiring Our Youth)

Efen and Raquel Núñez, immigrants from Cuadadlayara, Mexico, worked hard to provide for their four children, who they constantly reminded about the importance of a good education in a thriving country. In addition to good grades, the children attended college through the joint efforts of their families, role-models, and teachers. In 2007, the Núñez son, Efen, a University of Southern California Alumni, challenged his youngest sister, Patricia, then a University of Florida junior, to make a difference - to help other Latinos and under-represented youth get into college and earn a degree. She accepted the challenge and that is how Inspirando Nuestra Juventud (INI) was born.

INI is a joint partnership with Sigma Delta Alpha at USC, the Mexican American Student Association at UF, and the Mexican American Council of South Florida. Last year, INI provided 20 South Florida migrant high school students who had excellent academic credentials with firsthand college experience at UF. Due to the program's overall success, INI would like to expand its reach and is now working closely with the Miami-Dade Public School Migrant Education Division to identify students who can benefit from the program. Please join us and become a real "inspiration."
